For families grieving the death of a loved one...

For many, the holiday season is a time of celebration and joy. For those who have experienced the death of a loved one it can be a painful reminder of what's missing. Coping with grief while those around you are full of cheer may intensify your feelings of loss. Each family member, adult or child, will likely experience these feelings in differing ways. Opportunities to explore and share feelings and memories in the company of family, friends and other grieving individuals encourages healing and growth for all ages in a supportive, understanding and validating environment.
